COUNTY WIDE FARM CONFERENCE IS CALLED

Still Another Proposal For Shoals Is Received

DETAILS OF LATEST PLAN NOT DISCLOSED

Secretary Weeks Says
Offer Comes From a Responsible Source

COMPARISON NOT YET BEEN MADE

Suggestions Invited by Bidders Executive
Announces

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—Secretary Weeks said he has received still another of the proposals for the Muscle Shoals project.

Details of the new plan have not been disclosed, but it contemplates manufacture of nitrates for fertilizer.

The secretary said today he had not examined the proposal and could not tell how it compared with the Ford offer, or with the plan just presented by a combination of Southern Power companies, contemplating rental of the Alabama plant for a period of 50 years with a proviso that title to the property remain with the government and the way be left open for fertilizer manufacture.

The new proposal still is tentative but the war secretary said it came from entirely responsible people. He declined to reveal the source. He has been asked to make such suggestions as he desires and he appeared to believe a definite offer to purchase or lease the Muscle Shoals plant would follow.

ADLAI STEPHENSON KILLS A BIG PORKER

The publication of stories regarding the killing of fine Poland China hogs in Morgan County this year indicates that the farmers of the county are improving the live stock of the county and turning more and more attention to this phase of farming.

Some splendid hogs have been butchered in the county this fall and winter, but it remained for Adlai H.
Stephenson, a rural carrier at the Hartselle postoffice, to apparently win
the county championship.

Speaking of Mr. McCutcheon's fine record in the Lacey Springs neighborhood, Mr. Stephenson writes The Daily: "Tell Mr. McCutcheon to come down and get some good stock. I kill-one a lot younger in December. It weighed 706 pounds. Its length, when hung up, from heels to nose, was seven feet, 10 inches." A picture showing the porker, longer than a man, was enclosed.

A porker killed Friday by Mrs. R.
F. Woodward at Austinville weighed 526 pounds was only 15 months old and was of the Duroc Jersey breed, kept on a floored pen since he was 8 weeks old and until he outgrew the pen was in a pen 3x6 feet. He was fed on a little corn and slop all his life until 2 months before killing and then corn and clear water. There was one hundred and seventy five pounds of lard, forty pounds of sausage realized
besides the meat.

New Orleans Looks for Sara Shepler

(Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 10—Managers of three New Orleans hotels, a big department store and the police are wondering what has become of Sara Shepler, a comely brunette, about 40 years old. She arrived here yesterday and registered at a hotel.
She hadn't left the desk, according to the police, before she had a $150 check cashed. Then she went to another hotel, got a $15 check cashed and to a third and obtained $20 on another piece of spurious paper, the police said.

The tip that Sara Shepler was in town came to the New Orleans Retail Merchants Bureau in a telegram from San Antonio, Texas, which told of her operations in that city and Dallas.

OFFICERS ON HEELS OF DESPERADO GANG

(Associated Press)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 10

Officers and possemen, following three trails early Thursday in pursuit of three members of the famous Ashley gang, following a gunfight with officers, which began Wednesday in which one outlaw was left dead in the bandit camp in payment for the life of an officer, shot down at close quarters by a lookout, as Sheriff Bob Baker and four deputies sought to enter the camp to arrest Joe W. Ashley on a charge of highway robbery. Deputy Fred Baker was killed by the lookout.

The pursuers pressed forward, led by packs of bloodhounds, grimly determined to wipe out an outlaw band held responsible for many of the major crimes in Florida during the past ten years, and knowing they searched for men who would die fighting.

Just before nightfall Wednesday,
Deputy Sheriff encountered John Ashley, son of Joe Ashley, near Olympis and exchanged shots with him. The officers' automobile stalled and Ashley came within 50 yards of the party before he recognized one of the deputies.

SUFFERERS FROM MENTAL TROUBLE

Ex-Captain Is Struck in Head With Axe in Hands of Friend

(Associated Press)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 10—Mitchell Taylor, 28 years old, formerly a captain in the United States army and Richmond, Va., attorney was fatally wounded at the Highland hospital here last night by another patient. He died two hours later. The slaying was done by Robert Moore, 27 years old, said to be a member of a wealthy Chicago family, according to attendants.

Both men were undergoing treatment for mental troubles.
Both were overseas war veterans and saw hard service in the front line trenches, according to hospital authorities.

Moore, they said, never before had shown any indication of violent tendencies and had even been allowed to act as an assistant keeper during rational periods. The slaying was done with an axe.

Moore and Taylor were members of a party of patients who had been doing outside work as part of their treatment, hospital authorities said. As the party returned to the hospital, Moore, according to an eyewitness, stopped at a tool house, seized an axe and struck Taylor on the head.

Moore then started after an attendant, who took refuge in the tool house. Moore took his station in front of the tool house and refused to allow the attendant to leave, until others arrived and, closing in on him, felled him and secured the axe.

Hospital authorities today reported the slaying to the police department with the request they take Moore into custody. A preliminary hearing will be given him in police court.

DEMOCRAT ELECTED TO BEAT CUMMINS

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—A democrat, Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, was elected yesterday by the Senate as chairman of its interstate commerce committee, one of the ranking committees of the new republican congress.

Four insurgent republicans and the two former-labor senators threw their support to Smith thus not only breaking a deadlock which has existed since December 10, but also giving the congress a convincing manifestation that their control of the balance of power in the Senate is as complete as is that of the republican insurgents in the house.

On the thirty-second and final ballot of the deadlock, Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, who had the indorsement of the republican organization for reelection received only 29 votes as against 39 for Smith and six for Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, who had been the third choice of the insurgents.
Smith received only one vote more than the necessary majority of the 74 senators voting.

ANNUAL MEETING BY CITY NATIONAL HELD

Stockholders Receive Reports of a Very Prosperous Year

HARRIS AGAIN IS NAMED PRESIDENT

Miss Mattie Jones the Presiding Officer
for Stockholders

The third of the annual meetings of stockholders and directors of local national banks were held Wednesday afternoon at the City National bank of Decatur, the stockholders of that bank meeting soon after 2 o'clock, and the directors meeting of that bank being held soon after the termination of the stockholder's meeting.

Reports made by the officers of the bank to the stockholders proved satisfactory and very gratifying, the business done during the past year having passed the million dollar mark, with a good profit to the owners of the stock.

The stockholder's meeting was presided over by Miss Mattie Jones with dignity and under her direction the business was transacted with satisfaction to all concerned. W. B. Shackelford, cashier of the bank, was elected secretary.

Following the disposal of all business before stockholders, except the annual election of directors, the election was taken up with the following result: Col. C. C. Harris, John D.
Wyker, Sam W. Irwin, W. B. Shackelford, W. E. Roper, Joe L. Hutton, J.
T. Jones, D. D. McGehee, T. M. Dix,
A. D. Jervis, J. H. Peebles and J. H.
Calvin.

holders, the directors as elected held their regular annual meeting and transacted the regular routine business, after which they elected the following officers: Col. C. C. Harris, president; John D. Wyker, first vice president; Sam W. Irwin, second vice president; W. B. Shackelford, cashier;
W. E. Roper, assistant cashier.

The re-election of Col. C. C. Harris for another term, makes him one of the oldest national bank presidents in point of service in the entire country.
Colonel Harris is now in his 82nd year. If Col. Harris had "aged" and in the last few years he does not show it, and from the interest he takes in business and public affairs he feels no older than he did a dozen or more years ago.

Frozen Highways Permit Visits to Country Schools

The frozen condition of the roads enabled Dr. H. C. McRee and Miss Ella Dale, of the county health unit, to reach a number of the schools of the county this week, for the purpose of giving the students physical examinations.

But as the weather moderated and frozen conditions no longer existed the trips to the schools were terminated.

Dr. McRee and Miss Dale got as far as Neals school, having already visited Wines and Summit schools and started on to Johnson's chapel and Liberty, but when they had gotten about 200 yards from Neals, the thin crust of frozen ground gave way, the automobile became stuck and the health officials had to be pulled out. The trip was discontinued and the homeward journey begun.

SOCIAL LEADER TO BE PUT ON TRIAL

SUMPTER, S. C., Jan. 10—Mrs.

China this afternoon was said to be ill of double pneumonia.

SUMPTER, S. C., Jan. 10—Mrs.

Louise China, a social leader of Sumpter, will be placed on trial at the February term of court for the murder of her husband, Dr. Archie China, prominent physician and banker, it was announced today by Solicitor Frank McLeod. A coroner's jury yesterday formally charged her with murder.

Mrs. China today was reported threatened with pneumonia by authorities at the hospital, where she was taken on Monday in an apparent state of collapse.

Dr. China's body, with two bullet wounds in his head, was found in a bathroom.

Testimony at the inquest was that the physician had been killed nearly 24 hours before, or at about ten o'clock Saturday morning. A story of domestic discord, heightened by a wife's jealousy over her 58 year old husband, was laid before the coroner's jury. One witness, Mrs. C. M. Phifer, described as a close friend and confidante of Mrs.
China, said the latter told her she was "dying for the love and caresses which she believed her husband was lavishing on other women." The names of the other women were not mentioned

COUNSEL TOGETHER PLEA OF OFFICIALS

President Jas. Cain and Agent Ford Urge
Attendance

CONFERENCE SET FOR JANUARY 17th

Session Will Be Held at the City Hall
at Hartselle

Farmers and all other persons interested in the problems of the farm have been called to meet Thursday, January 17, at 10 o'clock in the city hall at Hartselle to "counsel together" on the matters now occupying the attention of the planters of Morgan county.

The call for the meeting is signed by James F. Cain, president of the Morgan County Farm Bureau, and by J. C. Ford, county farm agent.

Business men from every section of the county were requested to spare enough time from other things to attend the session in Hartselle and lend their help to solving the questions now facing the agricultural interests.

The call, in full, follows:

"The present unsatisfactory conditions of agriculture, due to unsettled labor conditions, the ravages of insects and low prices of many agricultural products as compared to the cost of manufactured goods, demands that the most serious consideration be given for the ensuing year.

"To this end we ask that the farmers, bankers, merchants, newspaper men and other business men who may be concerned about the agricultural welfare of Morgan County meet in the City Hall
at Hartselle at 10:00 o'clock, Thursday, January 17th, to counsel together on such matters as crop acreage, insect control, fertilizers, diversification, finances, marketing, etc.

"If this meeting is well attended, and each one comes prepared to enter into the spirit of the conference, it will mean many thousands of dollars within the next twelve months, to the farmers and business interests of Morgan County. When the day comes, turn loose of what ever you may be doing and come to this meeting.

"Jas. F. Cain, Pres. County farm bureau.
"J. C. Ford, County Agent."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Pettit Came as He Said He Would.

I SAW in Harriet Braithwaite's face the same terror only a hundred fold more intense than had been mine, and I answered her quickly, even as Dicky had responded to my query but a few minutes before.

"No, no," I whispered the words so that her mother should hear nothing. "Edwin is all right, but—"

Then I told her in as few words as possible of the terrible accident which had killed her sister and left but a few hours of life to her brother-in-law. She made no outcry—I think her relief at knowing her husband to be safe outweighed every other emotion for the moment—but she caught at the nearest chair back and sat down heavily, while the grayish pallor which shock often brings, blotted out the color from her cheeks.

"Lila! Lila! Oh, poor girl!" she whispered at last, and I knew that for the second she was visualizing the old days when she and the woman who so suddenly had been snatched from life had played together in loving, sisterly comradeship. That Elizabeth Harrison, by her own coldness, had chilled the affection of her family I well knew, and I guessed that the sorrow of both Harriet and Dicky was made more poignant by the bitter reflection, however slight, that they knew themselves to be.

The next instant she had sprung to her feet, palpably putting down every hint of emotion with an iron hand.

Harriet Helps Out.

"How soon will that doctor be here?" she demanded.

"Any minute now," I answered. "He is the fastest and most reckless driver in all this section."

"That was a splendid idea of yours to pretend to be ill, Margaret," my sister-in-law said abruptly. "We certainly shall need a physician for Mother. Will you?" she turned to Mrs. Ticer uncertainly, and I hastily introduced the two women.

"If you will tell Katie about this," my sister-in-law went on, "and have her have plenty of hot water ready—you'd better fill a couple of hot water bags."

She added a few other directions, to which Mrs. Ticer nodded capably, then Harriet slipped her arm around me, and put her lips to my cheek.

"When that doctor comes I shall give him a hint to order some drops of heart stimulant for mother, under the pretext that she is too excited over you," she whispered, and then she said loudly to the benefit of my mother-in-law, whose foot-steps we heard upon the stairs: "Just lean on me, Margaret. I'll help you to your room."

"Is she any better, Harriet?" my mother-in-law asked anxiously, and with a constricting little feeling of guilt for my deception I realized that her concern for me was genuine and affectionate. It was the first revelation I had had that beneath her crustiness was a very real love for me, and the knowledge gave a keener edge to my sorrowful anxiety concerning the probable effect upon her of the terrible news we were waiting to break to her.

Just about the same, I fancy," Harriet responded. "I want to get her to her room as soon as possible."

Safe in my room, she turned my care over to her mother.

"If you'll just loosen her dress and shoes, Mother, I'll go down and get a hot water bag for her feet."

"There's the doctor, now," I said, with anxious feeling, as I heard a car drive furiously into the yard.

"I'll bring him right up," Harriet made a precipitate exit, and I knew that she would acquaint Dr. Pettit with our case, that he might act accordingly.

"Don't take off my shoes yet, Mother," I stopped her as she bent to my shoe laces. "Time enough after Dr. Pettit comes up."

"That's true," she replied docilely, and I lay back with eyes closed, and kept them closed while Harriet led the physician into the room and to the bedside. At his first words I opened them to find his face set into a forbidding mask as he asked me a few perfunctory questions. I saw that he would not soon forgive or forget the humiliating experience which I unwillingly had shared in thrusting upon him, but little I cared for that when he turned to my mother-in-law with the gentle rallery he always saves for elderly patients and children. It is a manner which completely transforms him.

"She'll be all right when I've fixed her up a dose," he said smiling, "but you must take one, too."

"Me? I guess not," she bridled. "I don't need anything."

"You don't think so, but you do. This excitement is too much for you," he replied, taking her wrist firmly in his hand.

"I thought so," he said, after a few seconds. "Now, down with this."

He gave her a potion, and busied himself with apparent care for me for a little while. Then he nodded to Harriet, and stood unobtrusively near while she took her frail mother into her strong arms and told her the thing for which we had been preparing her. But though our precautions saved her weak heart from stopping, and though she struggled bravely for composure, she was too old and weak to bear the blow without breaking, and after a wide-eyed staring at each of us in turn, and a convulsive twitching of her face, she slumped against her daughter's shoulder in a merciful swoon.

THE CALL

By Juanita Hamel

ETERNAL Youth is calling. Whether it be under the warm Summer skies or the cold Winter skies, Youth calls to Youth—and Youth is always there to answer. No May and December here. She stands at the end of the path and her first call brings to her a companion. Soon they will be gliding over the ice, as smoothly, as happily as Love itself should run through the years. And if they hit a bit of rough ice—why they cling only the closer to each other and pass over the uneven surface with never an upset. May Life itself be always as interesting for them—together—as is the lake on this sparkling Winter day.

WINIFRED BLACK TELLS ABOUT The Fads of Other Days

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THE woman who used to be younger than she is to-day was talking about some of the new fads:

"What's the use of getting so excited about them?" she said. "They're nothing but fads, anyhow. Here to-day and gone to-morrow like the little hats that look like the rubber cap on top of the old-fashioned lead pencil and the big hats that look like cart wheels."

"Just as you get to thinking they're really rather nice and you couldn't get along without them to save your life, they're gone. And in a month or two you've forgotten they ever existed."

"When I was a girl we had hundreds of fads, and some things that were not fads at all—they were crusades."

"There was Susan B. Anthony, for instance. She was an elderly woman and I was a little girl, but I heard so much about her I felt as if we were both about the same age."

"Susan B. Anthony said that women ought to vote. She said they were going to vote some day, and when they did the world was going to be made over."

What They Wanted Then

"No more fraudulent elections, no more corruption in politics, no more bad laws, badly administered. The women would see to all that—when they had the vote."

"Then there was Miss Frances Willard. Everybody who knew Frances Willard loved her, they said, everybody but the saloon-keepers."

"Miss Willard was determined to get rid of the saloons, and she said that when the saloons were gone we'd close the jails and shut up the penitentiaries and put a big sign 'To Let' on most of the reform schools."

"Drive out the saloon," said Miss Willard, "and crime will pack up and go."

"Robert G. Ingersoll was a big man in those days. He had something he wanted to abolish, too—churches and creeds. He said that the time was going to come when people would play baseball on Sunday and go driving on the Sabbath Day, too, and nobody would think that there was anything specially important about church at all. When all this happened the world was going to be tolerant and broad minded, Colonel Ingersoll said."

More Old Reforms

"And then there were the dress reform people. They declared that the corset was the root of all evil. Abolish the corset and you could shut up the hospitals and half the doctors in the country would have to go out of business—so the dress reformers insisted."

"Well, the saloons are gone, the corset is gone, women are voting, people play baseball on Sunday, the hospitals and the prisons are just as full as ever, and I don't see that we're any more tolerant about our neighbor's religion than we were in those days. Do you?"

And we who sat and listened to the woman who used to be younger than she is to-day looked at each other, and some of us smiled and some of us sighed. Which would you have done if you had been there?

THE HOME KITCHEN

Soups That Have an International Flavor to Them

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking.

THERE are certain soups which are to be had all over the world at hotels and restaurants that cater for tourists. These may be called international soups. Strange to say, vegetable and cream soups predominate, while a sprinkling of fish soups are included. Most of the Latin races are fond of soup. Hot soups are generally used, but cold fruit soups are also liked.

In soup serving, it is well to remember that a heavy soup should precede a light dinner, a clear soup a hearty dinner, a fish soup or chowder a fish dinner.

Cream of Tomato Soup.

Add to a large can of tomatoes, soup vegetables, celery, onions and seasoning. Boil the mixture for half an hour, then strain it. Have ready a quart of hot milk. Add to it, a saltspoonful of soda. Pour in the tomato mixture, thicken the soup with a little flour and butter worked to a paste. Reheat the soup, seasoning it to taste, then add to it a tureen or a double boiler in case it must stand a few minutes before being served.

Vermicelli Soup.

Put a small chicken trussed for boiling into the soup kettle with a two-pound piece of shin of beef, a sliced onion, carrots, parsley, celery, two leeks, a diced potato and a diced white turnip. Add three quarts of water and cook the soup gently until the chicken is done, then remove it. When the chicken is slightly cool, remove the meat from the bones and throw bones and trimmings into the soup. Boil the soup a half hour more, then strain it. Remove the grease when the soup is cold. Reheat the soup, seasoning it to taste, then add to it two ounces of vermicelli and cook it gently until it is tender. Use the chicken for creaming.

Peel and chop four large Spanish onions, then put them into a frying-pan with two ounces of butter. Stir them gently and let them melt down, but not cook brown. When they are cooked a little, add to them a quart of clear, rich stock. Cook the soup gently for a half hour, then strain it, season it, add to it a cupful of boiling cream and serve.

Oxtail Soup.

This soup is made of oxtails in all countries except perhaps Australia, where it is made of kangaroo tails. Take two tails cut in joints, with a slice of ham, soup vegetables and three quarts of water. Let the mixture simmer gently for three hours, season it to taste, strain it and remove the meat from the bones and add it to the soup. Thicken this soup slightly and serve it.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am twenty-one years old and I am in love with a young girl, but she doesn't seem to love me. Perhaps she is too young to understand what love means. Please tell me what to do to make her understand.

LIGHTNING DIAMOND.

LIGHTNING DIAMOND: If the girl is so young, don't you think it would be wiser to wait a few years before you consider her as anything but a friend? Then, perhaps, because of your devotion to her, she may return your affection.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl eighteen years old. I don't like to know how to attract young men. I stammer and I am rather bashful. BOBBIE.

BOBBIE.

BOBBIE: When you are with young people, think of what they are doing and talking about and you will soon forget your bashfulness. When you lose your self-consciousness, you may be able to overcome your stammering.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl nineteen years old. My stepmother has a nephew who works here in town and comes to visit us quite often. Now this young man wants to keep company with me, but my father objects to this and, of course, I must obey him.

I like this young man very much as a friend. What must I say to him so as not to offend him or cause any hard feelings between us?

Is it proper for a girl and her young man friend to go to the moving picture theatres at night unchaperoned?

GOLDEN LOCKS.

GOLDEN LOCKS: Tell the young man the truth, my dear. This is always the best thing to do.

It is always better to have a chaperone.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Be Careful to See That You Do Not Waste Energy

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

HOW much unnecessary energy do you use up during the day?

If you are determined to preserve your health and beauty in the most efficient manner, you must pay attention to this matter of conservation of energy.

You see, everything that you do uses up so many heat calories in the doing. This estimation has not been carried out to the fullest possible extent, but we know by actual measurement the number of calories that certain activities call for.

The calories thus quoted mean to the amount of heat necessary to raise the temperature of one kilogram of water to one degree centigrade. These experiments were made by the United States Department of Agriculture, in the office of Home Economics, and the results are quite interesting to housekeepers and others who are willing to draw deductions from the experiments made.

For instance, sweeping with a long-handled broom at the average rate of about thirty-eight strokes a minute requires forty heat calories an hour.

Then the experiments embrace things done in the right way and things done in the wrong way. This is where the clever woman can learn her lesson. She can do so whether the activities that require her energy center upon housekeeping or upon equally difficult tasks. So the experiments should be interesting to the woman who learns to apply the experiences of others to her own particular problem, as well as to the woman who keeps house, and whose activities include the special things mentioned.

For example, the homely task of dish-washing is said to require twenty-one calories when the sink is placed at the proper height. But, when the busy woman does not take the time to do things in the proper manner and uses a sink so high that her hands cannot drop down in a fairly natural position when washing dishes, then the calories required are twenty-five.

Then the experiments embrace things in the wrong way, which use up your strength, and which drag down the good, healthy average of your strength and beauty?

For instance, along with your other duties, do you try to do the social things that come up, whether you are going to enjoy them or not?

We all like to play occasionally, and it is only right that we should. But if we insist upon accepting an invitation simply because it is an invitation, we are making a mistake.

Macaws, a kind of parrot, native to South America, can break with their beaks nuts which resist attacks with a hammer.

YOUR HEALTH

Be Sure to Get Right Food to Supply Demands of Body

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ANYBODY who has ever been to Leipzig remembers the great zoological gardens and the multitudes of wonderful animals there. An interesting story has been going the rounds of the press about what is happening to those animals because of the lack of meat to feed them.

The high prices have made it impossible to buy the meat and oatmeal has been substituted. As a result of this new diet, the wolves and tigers and lions have grown thin and had tempered. They howl and carry on day and night.

The fur does not thicken up this Winter as it does under normal conditions. As a result, the pelts are so thin that the animals suffer from the cold.

What is more interesting is that the birth rate has sharply declined, few little animals being born.

I am not surprised at these results of the poor feeding. The same things happen to human beings if they are deprived of proper food. When I was at the Russian border last year, reputable physicians told me that the emaciated, half-starved and impoverished mothers gave birth to babies without finger nails.

The poor little things, if they were born alive, could hardly live because of their serious lack of vitality.

I have seen in the schools of New York City, undernourished children who gave evidence in their thin and listless hair that they were far below par. When properly fed these same children became possessed of bright, shiny tresses heavy and thicker by far than in the beginning of the feeding.

Animals in the zoo, or human animals, cannot thrive and reproduce unless they are fed sufficient quantities of the right foods.

In every dietary there must be fresh vegetables or fresh fruits, or the vitamin-carrying meats. Cream and sugar added to the Leipzig menu would supply the vital element and energy that oatmeal alone does not possess.

You must get it out of your head that food is necessary merely to satisfy your appetite. Unless it supplies the demands of your body and gives to each and every tissue the elements they require, there can be no health in you.

Eat wisely and well for your health and positively depend on your eating.

Answers to Health Questions.

Mrs. R. D. Q.—Is there any truth in the saying that if a left-handed child is compelled to write with the right hand he will stammer?

A.—At about what age do you believe it advisable to send a child to school?

A.—No, there is no truth in this saying.

2.—If the school is not very far away you might send the child at about the age of five or six years, if only for part time in the beginning.

MISS F. & J. Q.—The toe next to my great toe feels as though it were bruised; it is impossible for me to touch it. When I raise my other toes this one hangs down and I can't control it. Will you kindly advise me regarding this condition?

A.—This is probably due to some nerve condition or a pressure on the nerve of the toe. However, an examination by your physician will show the underlying cause of the trouble.

GRATEFUL FRIEND, Q.—What are the advantages and disadvantages of vaccination?

A.—Since the advent of vaccination smallpox is practically unknown. There are no disadvantages, W. W. Q.—Is there any way I can increase my height?

A.—No, there is no way you can increase your height.

ANXIOUS MOTHER, Q.—My little girl's ears protrude. Will you kindly tell me what to do for this condition?

A.—Try putting a cap on the child at night. If this does not improve the condition take her to a plastic surgeon for an examination and further advice concerning treatment.

DAILY READER, Q.—Will you kindly tell me whether or not cleaning the teeth with bicarbonate of soda is just as beneficial as the ordinary tooth paste?

A.—No this is not as beneficial as tooth paste for the tooth paste contains a certain rough ingredient to safely remove the tartar from the teeth.

MISS T. D. Q.—My father has been following a strict diet for the last three years. He has not been instructed to follow this diet. It is just one that he has outlined himself. Do you believe that this will injure his health in any way?

A.—This is apt to injure his health to a very serious extent after a while. One should not follow a strict diet unless it has been outlined by a physician for some particular condition.

CONSTANT READER, Q.—I have a very small scar on the side of my face. Is there anything I can do to remove this scar?

2.—Do you believe that — will injure the eyes?

A.—If the scar is not very deep it may be made less noticeable by means of an X-ray treatment.

E. S. Q.—Can the eyes be made darker in color?

A.—The eyes cannot be made darker in color.

Chinese Influence Is Seen in This Brown and Gold Brocade Blouse.

THE loose blouse that drops to the knees or thereabouts is one of our most attractive interpretations of the vogue for things Chinese.

This charming afternoon model above makes its loose-hanging blouse of brown and gold brocade. Beaver fur edges the hem and sleeves, while brown duvetyne forms a rounded bill effect at the front of the neck which ends in gay streamers at the back.

The straight skirt is of matching brown duvetyne, buttoned down either side with square brown buttons.

The gatherings of Congress will be termed get-together meetings unless something is done soon.

President Coolidge has set at least one good example by getting out of bed at 6:30 A. M. New Year's Day.

The failure of America to recognize Russia, is not due to lack of knowledge of that war-quitting country.

If diplomacy is what it is said to be, no wonder those who practice it desire with a mighty longing, booze, much booze and still more booze.

It is all very well to talk about arising from a warm bed voluntarily, but it would be about 10 o'clock in the morning before many would do so.

After it becomes possible to pass to and from Mars, its citizens should be investigated by a committee for that purpose before business and social intercourse is established with them.

Many are saved from death by modern sanitation only to be killed by new improved vehicles; still, sudden death is preferable to long drawn out fatal illnesses.

ALBANY-DECATUR MIGHT WELL LOOK INTO THIS PROPOSITION

The board of trustees of the Alabama School of Trades and Industry will be in Gadsden next Wednesday to inspect the sites offered by this city for location of the proposed institution, and to learn at first hand, the advantages of this district as a location for the school.

This new institution, it is predicted, is destined to become one of the most important in the state's educational system. It contains great possibilities. It may be developed to a point where hundreds, and even thousands, of boys and young men will be attracted to it in order to secure that practical training which will assist them in making their way in trade and in industry.

Therefore, it behooves Gadsden citizens and civic leaders to leave no stone unturned in the effort to secure the school. The visiting trustees should be given every opportunity to survey the situation while here, and to learn the manifold reasons why the school should be placed in this city.—Gadsden Journal.

LODGE STRIKES RESPONSIVE CHORD IN DENOUNCING BOLSHEVIKI GOVERNMENT

Senator Lodge's opposition to the League of Nations and his persistent antagonism to a great many of the policies of former President Wilson make the Massachusetts senator unpopular in many parts of the nation, but many hearty "amens" will be voiced to his recent opposition to official recognition of Russia by the United States. In a speech of over 30,000 words recently delivered in the Senate in opposition to the resolution of Senator Borah favoring American recognition of the Russian government, Mr. Lodge states some plain truths in a very plain way. He takes the ground that not just the so-called soviet government, but also the communist party and the federation of the soviet republic control all governmental matters in Russia. The Senator says in this connection:

"The interlocking directorates constitute the real government of Russia." "All power is theirs. In the presence of these facts, it is to mind absurd to say that the Russian soviet republic really governs Russia. That is merely one of the divisions and not the most important."

"It furnishes, however, a convenient opportunity to say that things which are done and controlled by the other dominant branches of the government are not done by the government of Russia. Everything that has been done by any one of the three branches of the Russian government—the federation of Soviet republic, the Russian Soviet republic and the communist party, and the greatest of these is the communist party—has been done by the government or Russia.

"I think I have shown who the men are who control all these organizations and who control Russia and who are the real government of Russia. It is a very formidable and highly organized system of government—arbitrary, unscrupulous and efficient."

The relation existing between the hated communist internationale and the soviet leaders, Lenin, Trotsky, Zinoviev, and their kind, was plainly shown by the Senator, who then made the following expression:

"In my judgment, it is no time to give the soviet government of Russia the official recognition and approval of the United States and invite official representatives to come among us, and under the diplomatic shield seek to break up our own labor organizations, attack American laws and American freedom and kindle the flame of riot and disorder throughout our country."

GREAT THINGS CLAIMED FOR THE BOK PEACE PLAN

One of the chief reasons of Prof. Edward W. Bok for offering $100,000 for a plan to establish peace throughout the world was to secure the attention of the American people to the necessity of some way being found to destroy the seeds of war. The large interest aroused by the appearance of the successful essay has already largely repaid Mr. Bok for his large expenditure. Hundreds and thousands of people are thinking, reading, and talking of peace who gave that important question little attention before the Bok award.

At least the over 22,000 contestants—22,165 to be exact—have given the peace problem careful study. And more than just the individuals whose names were signed to the peace essays were interested in them and helped prepare them. Mr. Bok himself stated the morning the successful anti-war plan was made public:

"Since many of them were the composite work of organizations, universities, etc., a single plan often represented the views of hundreds of individuals."

In other words, many voices representing the great voice of the American people spoke through the peace prize essays, and all of them in different language and with different ideas, but still all demanded that war be outlawed from the face of the globe.

It is said newspapers containing the prize essay and a ballot asking acceptance or rejection of the peace plan advocated in the essay will be read by 27,000,000 Americans. It would be a fine thing if all the 27,000,000 people who get a copy of the successful plan would send in an option on it. It is believed that from the colleges alone over 700,000 replies will come. It is expected that the women and their clubs will be largely interested in the plan, sufficiently so to send in replies from the over a million women. Many thousands of replies will be made at the requests of the preachers of the nation, and at the request of other church leaders.

Farmers and other people in all walks of life are expected to vote on the peace proposals, through the several organizations. As many recall, the successful essay begins by reminding that about four-fifths of mankind are already connected by the League of Nations through their governments, and the opinion expressed that these people will not give up their present peace organization for another one. The essay suggests immediate entry into the world court for the reasons given by former President Harding this coming February one year ago. Moral force is suggested to take the place of carnal weapons approved by the League of Nations covenant, also that Articles X and XVI of the League be not used by the United States. The nearest the new plan comes to an endorsement of the League of Nations is an expression contained in it, which says in effect that world co-operation for peace must come from "some form of agreement with the world as now organized, called the League of Nations."

The plan provides a way for making international law more effective. It safeguards the Monroe Doctrine and, it is said, no part of the plan advocates giving up a single principle held dear to the American people. Those who hope much for the Bok peace plan are prophesying that from its effects a great anti-war movement will spring up in America that will accomplish practical results.

New German Oil Formula Rubs Out Rheumatic Pains

Local Druggists Give Written Guarantee To Refund Money If First Application Fails To Bring Relief

A remarkably new discovery now promises quick, soothing relief to Rheumatic Sufferers. German chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache pains, and Novocaine for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that is absolutely guaranteed to end rheumatic pains.

This marvelous discovery, known as Buhler Oil is a new combination of certain rare oils, which produces a clear amber liquid that is applied with the finger tips. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissues. Results are truly amazing! Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints become supple, annoying twinges cease. Even the most advanced, stubborn cases show astonishing improvement almost at once.

Rheumatism, it has been found in an enormous number of cases, is due to toxic poisons formed in the intestines, which are carried by the blood to the muscles and joints—and the new German oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons.

So amazing have been the results from this German discovery that American distributors have authorized local druggists to offer it under a positive written guarantee, signed by the druggist himself, to refund the purchase price if even the first application fails to bring prompt and gratifying relief.

If you suffer from stabbing rheumatic pains in the arms, legs and muscles—if your back sometimes feels as if it would break in two—if your joints rasp and torture you—then by all means try a bottle of Buhler Oil today. You'll never want to be without it.

Remember—it is sold under an absolute written guarantee from your druggist. If it fails to give you relief after the first application, your druggist will refund the money without question. In this city Buhler Oil can be obtained under this written guarantee from good druggists such as Albany Drug Co., Preuit-Dillehay; Dillehay Brothers; S. M. Thompson.—Adv.

"WATCH YOUR STEP" Campaign

Launched by Royal Arcanum

PLAYING WITH DEATH

CHICAGO—Most of the accidents which bring grief to thousands of American homes each year are the direct result of carelessness. Richard E. Kropf, Supreme Regent of the Royal Arcanum declared in an address here. The Royal Arcanum has just launched a campaign for "all year round" safety among its 1,300 councils in the United States and Canada.

"Safety for our members is the primary object of the movement," stated Mr. Kropf. "We are heartily in accord with every activity which makes this country a safer place to live in. When we have taught each member of the Arcanum and his family, roughly a total of half a million people, to be careful in all their walks of life, we shall feel our efforts have meant something."

"We are teaching pedestrians in traffic as well as automobilists. We are teaching motor car drivers that traffic laws are to be obeyed at all times. We are teaching children that busy streets are not safe places in which to play. We are teaching car owners that racing to a crossing with a locomotive is racing with death. We are teaching house owners that watching stoves and furnaces more carefully during the winter months prevents fires which bring injury and financial loss.

"The Royal Arcanum is selling no accident insurance. It has no interest in the sale of safety devices. There is nothing ulterior in this Watch Your Step campaign. This fraternal society recognizes that many lives are lost and many persons are maimed through failure to observe the simplest safety rules. We recognize in this complex modern life a great safety problem and are endeavoring to do our share in solving it."

New York Letter

Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—There are five handits somewhere in this city who will pick out a male victim the next time they go banditting. No one need talk about the more helpless sex before them and expect them to know that woman is meant. All five of them, armed, followed Mrs. Essie Simmons into her apartment building the other evening, and demanded her jewels.

Then their plan went awry. Instead of complying as a frightened lone woman against five masked men with guns should do, Mrs. Simmons screamed and fought back. One of the men hit her over the head with his pistol butt and she was knocked over several times, but each time she rose again, and continued her fight. Employees of the apartment house finally got the police and the bandits fled, leaving Mrs. Simmons, bruised and disheveled but completely in command of the situation.

A somewhat disconcerting Christmas sentiment was expressed in a Broadway window, where this sign still may be seen: "Say it with a Razor."

Regardless of what some critics in various parts of the country may say about us, our city has been completely approved by no less a national authority than Ed. Howe, of Kansas. Mr. Howe looked us over very carefully on his recent trip here, and he proclaims us admirable as well as enjoyable. "It is a joke to refer to New York as a modern Sodom," he said. "It is actually the most creditable community in the world. Why do people like praise of things like Alaska and abuse of things like New York?"

It is doubtful that Ernest Ball, the song writer, will care to drive down to the station to meet week-end guests at his Long Island home, until something drastic can be done to his automobile. The car has just been recovered by the police after having been stolen, and it doesn't exactly meet Mr. Ball's needs in the form it has been found. It has been converted into a big white hearse, and Detective Michael Coleman, of the auto squad, refused even to ride down to police headquarters in it when it was found.

John MacCormack has his smallest audience of years the other day, but never a more appreciative one, when he acted as altar boy at his brother's wedding at the church of the Blessed Sacrament.

like New York? I have often wondered about it."

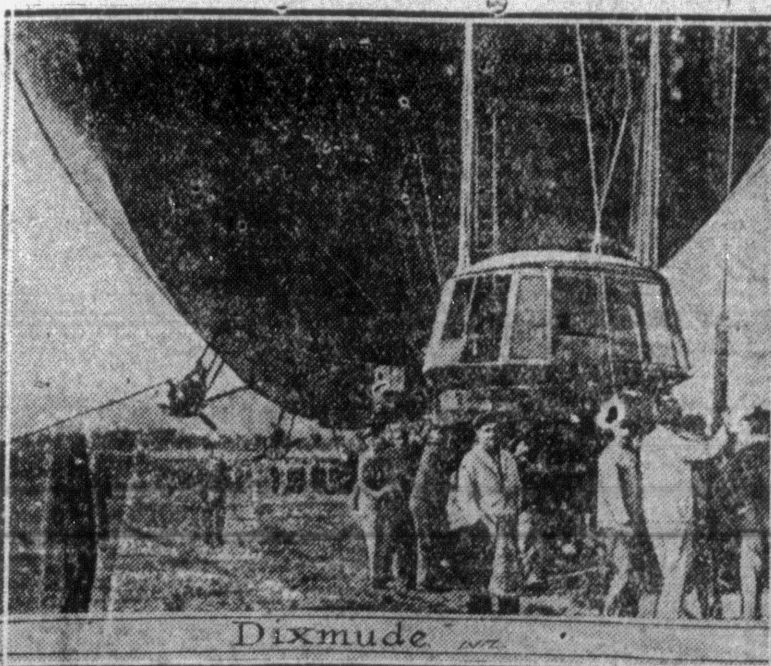

The Equity Players are in no danger of being stamped as producers of any one kind of drama. Following the historical "Queen Victoria," they have presented "Neighbors," a laughing burlesque of life in a small town, which veers close to the boundary between comedy and farce. It is good fun, partly because of Ruth Nugent, Georgia Drew Mendrum and Frederick Burton.

Pampered pet dogs are now appearing in little coats of the fur that protects their mistresses from the cold winds. Some particularly striking splashes frish down the avenue, where leopard skin is the chosen fur.

DIXMUDE BUILT TO BOMB NEW YORK.

Dixmude.

Above is shown the control car of the missing French dirigible Dixmude, originally the Zeppelin L-72. The dirigible, which held the world's record for a 113-hour sustained flight, was built by the Germans during the World War for the express purpose of bombing New York City from the air.

Athens News

Mace Beasley died at his home on North Jefferson street last Sunday night. He has been an invalid for several months and the end had been expected. He leaves two sons, Charles and Walter, of Athens and one daughter, Mrs. Dr. Estes of Athens. The body was carried to the family cemetery at Salem in the western section of the county on Tuesday and buried after appropriate services.

Miss Florence Turntime died at the family residence on North Houston street on Monday night. She had been ill for some weeks and her death though sudden was not altogether unexpected. She leaves one brother, Benton, and her mother, and many other relatives of Athens as well as a great host of friends. The funeral was held from the Episcopalian church at ten o'clock Wednesday morning.

Stock taking and checking up on accounts seems to have been with pleasure this year. Many of the leading places of business of Athens show great prosperity during the past year. The farmers and Merchants bank declared dividends of 12 per cent. Long Grocery Company declared the highest dividends of any local concern yet announced, this prosperous wholesale place declaring to stockholders dividends of twenty per cent. Business begins well for the new year and it is the spirit of prosperity in the community.

The Athens Kiwanis Club held their regular meeting at six o'clock Tuesday evening. The dinner was served by the Epworth league of the Methodist church. The announcement was made that the new club house had been completed and was being furnished with all necessary equipment and would be ready for the regular luncheon on next Tuesday evening. The announcement was received with great enthusiasm. It was immediately agreed to have open house for many of the friends and especially the ladies who would be invited to attend this meeting.

The Parents School Improvement Association announced a meeting for Friday afternoon of this week at the Public school building. A good program has been arranged including two brief addresses, one by Prof. W. T. Johnson of the Agricultural school and Dr. J. O. Williams pastor of the Baptist church.

The Limestone Poultry Association is presenting a most excellent poultry show in Athens on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The interest in growing poultry in Limestone County has increased very greatly in the last two years. There is a growing interest now in raising fine bred chickens and people all over the county take pride in the great birds they have been able to raise and bring to the show. Great profit is being realized by the growers of poultry in this county by the growers of poultry.

Twenty One Years Of Service To This Community

Twenty-one years ago Tuesday a little group of men with a vision which revealed to them the future growth of this community, and with faith in their section of Southland, held the first stockholders meeting of the Morgan County National Bank.

In 1924, on the twenty-first anniversary of that initial meeting, the stockholders of this institution again met in their annual session to hear the reports of progress made during the year just passed. The growth this institution has enjoyed during the twenty-one years of its existence reflects the development of Albany and Morgan County as a whole. It is a tribute at the same time, to the founders who foresaw the day when a big banking institution would play a prominent part in this development.

During these twenty-one years which have rolled by us, the Morgan County National Bank has continually grown. Its deposits amounted to $155,000 when it was founded. Today its deposits, in round numbers, total $1,600,000—TEN TIMES AS MUCH. This growth has been based on service. The aim of its founders was to provide a banking house which would render to this community a distinct financial service. This aim, this bank has ever kept before it. As it grew, and as the community grew, the sphere of service has been enlarged.

The present officials of the Morgan County National Bank are grateful to the people of the Tennessee Valley for the confidence they have shown in this institution. They want the people of this section to be cognizant of this gratefulness. They want the people to feel at all times that the Morgan County National Bank, its officers and its stockholders, are ready and more than willing to serve them.

The outstanding social event of this week was the lovely bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Tennis Tidwell on Wednesday at her home on Jackson street. The interior of the home was attractive with pink rose carnations in silver holders banked with numbers of ferns.

At one o'clock the guests gathered and, soon after, an elaborate luncheon was served.

During the afternoon hours bridge was played and at this interesting game, Mrs. Dave Perkins made highest score and received a dainty souvenir while Miss Sabine Dupont was awarded the booby prize. Mrs. McAllister, of Huntsville the only out of town guest, was presented a memento.

The bridge players included, Mrs. E. W. Godbey, Mrs. E. F. Baird, Mrs. A. E. Humphrey, Mrs. Early Phinizy, Mrs. H. R. Davis, Mrs. Sabine Dupont, Mrs. A. A. OFFICERS INSTALLED IN JUNIOR SOCIETY

The first meeting of the Junior Missionary society for the year 1924 was held on Wednesday afternoon with their leader, Mrs. T. B. Woodard, as hostess.

Much enthusiasm was shown for the coming year's work, among the items of interest being a pledge of three dollars for three years towards the Belle H. Bennett Memorial fund.

About twenty one members were present, including two new members, Miss Katherine Hunter and Miss Mary Kate Troup.

The officers elected at a former meeting and installed at this time were president, Miss Jean Humphrey, vice president, Miss Frances Dinsmore, corresponding secretary, Miss Elizabeth Ann Hutson; recording secretary, Miss Helen Rauschenberg, treasurer, Miss Luella Mathison; superintendent of social service, Miss Mildred Nicholson.

HUNTING PARTY.

The following are in Lawrence County where they are enjoying a hunting trip; Rufus Pearson, Edwin Shackelford, Lewis Hardage and Vernon Gibson.

H. B. LUNCHEON CULB

The members of the H. B. Luncheon club were delightfully entertained on Wednesday by Mrs. J. R. Chrissinger. At a beautifully appointed table which was centered with a lovely fern, a delicious course luncheon was served.

The afternoon hours were whiled away in conversation and sewing as is the custom of this club.

Little Billy Jones is slightly improved but continues seriously ill with pneumonia at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Jones.

RUTHALIAN CLUB.

MRS. BAILEY HOSTESS.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Zeno Bailey's beautiful new home on Sherman street was thrown open to the Ruthalian Club.

At three o'clock the president, Mrs. E. D. Whitman, called the meeting to order, when with the usual preliminaries, a program was given. This opened with an interesting and enthusiastic round table on "Bible Quotations" illustrated by pictures.

The lesson study for the afternoon was Genesis. Mrs. T. A. Caddell gave a splendid paper on the structure of this book and Mrs. E. W. Kennedy followed with an inspiring talk on "The Progressive Revelation of Genesis." Mrs. Frank Morrow, in a voice of mellow tone, gave "Some Day He'll Make It Plain." Mrs. T. A. Bowles' paper on "Original Creations" covered beautifully the first chapter of Genesis and Mrs. Frank Morrow's talk on Creation in Detail covered the second chapter. The selections by Gruber, Gluck and Zimbalist were much enjoyed, and as a fitting close to the program, Miss Gladys Bernardi gave "The Swan Song" by Brooks.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET.

Mrs. Rufus Pearson was hostess to the members of the Young People's Missionary Society of the First M. E. church on Wednesday afternoon when the new officers were installed as follows:

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the nauseless calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, sleeping or work. Next morning your cold has vanquished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family-package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size. (Advt.)

Filled Lizard of Queensland. A curiosity of Queensland, in Australia, is the filled lizard, which does not crawl, as all other lizards do, but walks about on its hind legs, and when standing perfectly erect is often more than a yard high.

How to Grow Cotton Despite Boll Weevil

By Roland Turner, General Agricultural Agent, Southern Railway System

One most important fact that stands out in connection with cotton raising since the advent of the boll weevil is that good carefully selected land, well fertilized and properly cultivated is very much more sure to produce a normal yield than the average field. The importance of good land, liberally fertilized and well cultivated, or of good farming, in meeting the weevil problem, we think, has not been sufficiently stressed generally throughout the cotton belt. Much has been said about poison but little is said regarding the very large proportion of all lands planted to cotton each year that do not promise a yield sufficiently large to justify the use of poison in the most limited quantities for effective control of the weevil. Undoubtedly the most practical means of insuring a good crop of cotton is to select land for the crop that is naturally best adapted to cotton, that is, high, well drained, dry land that has been put in good mechanical condition through the plowing in of humus-making materials as legumes or animal manures, land that warms up early and upon which cotton makes rapid growth from the very beginning. This character of land fertilized liberally, coupled with the very best and most approved cultural methods, practically insures success. The writer has observed throughout the cotton belt that farmers here and there succeed in every community every year, regardless of weather conditions, and that the principles suggested above are uniformly followed by these farmers who make outstanding successes in raising cotton.

The past season we observed a crop of 100 acres on a South Carolina farm from which the farmer had picked 115 bales. This crop was on upland sandy clay soil with a yellow to red clay subsoil, was high and naturally well drained and would be classed as rather poor upland soil. The farmer had plowed in the previous fall, a crop of cowpeas, had followed in the spring with a thorough disking and bedding in the usual way, applying 750 pounds of a good, high-grade fertilizer per acre, putting all the fertilizer in before planting. The cotton stalks on this crop were but little more than knee high. The proportion of fruit to stalk or size of plant was about the best we have ever seen. The cotton which had been planted in 3 1-2 foot rows was chopped to a stand of 1 to 5 stalks in the hill, the width of a hoe. Frequent shallow cultivations were given and continued some weeks after the usual "laying by time." Although this farmer used poison, making three applications of a homemade syrup mixture, it was interesting to note that he was of the opinion that he would have made a good crop without any poison but that he considered the poison simply as insurance. He said "you know there is no kind of poison that will make cotton. It requires good cotton land in good condition with plenty of fertilizer and good cultivation to make cotton. Poison may save some cotton but it never makes any." It is remarkable and, we think, regrettable that the many conferences and meetings that have been held in the South in the past for devising ways and means of meeting the boll weevil menace, and assuring the future of the cotton raising industry, have practically ignored the principle this South Carolina farmer and other farmers here and there throughout the cotton belt have so successfully based their fight on the boll weevil upon.

The force of the logic of these successful cotton farmers seems almost irresistible and the soundness of the principles upon which they are proceeding is confirmed by the actual results being obtained in practically every cotton-growing community each year. We would then suggest these general principles for meeting the weevil situation and maintaining the supremacy of the south in world cotton production, as well as insuring a more profitable farm crop in cotton for the farmers of the cotton belt.

First—Select your best cotton land for planting; that is, land that warms up early and upon which cotton has always seemed to do better than upon other portions of the farm.

Second—Break early, preferably in the fall or winter. Thoroughly harrow and pulverize well before bedding up. Use a liberal amount of fertilizer best suited to your soil and conditions. A high-grade fertilizer with a heavy content of quickly available nitrogen is probably best.

Third—Plant early but not too early. Cotton should be planted at such time if possible as to insure that it will come up quickly and grow off rapidly. Care should be taken to plant good seed. Select some good early maturing variety and secure the best selected seed of this variety you can get. The annual loss sustained by farmers from planting poor seed is enormous. A careful checking of the average cotton field in September will show a percentage of stalks with no fruit. Eliminate these by careful seed selection. If you have failed to do this it will pay well to secure planting seed from some one who was careful in selection.

Fourth—Cultivate shallow and often. First cultivations may be made with harrow or weeder. Be sure and leave a good stand. Sufficient evidence apparently has been accumulated to convince anyone that 3 1-2 foot rows spaced the width of a hoe, two or more stalks to the hill, is the best spacing. Continue cultivation until crop is practically matured and keep as clean as possible. A crop is always delayed if not actually stunted when cultivation gets behind and the crop gets grassy, even though you do clean it out later. To delay the growing and fruiting under weevil conditions nearly always results in serious loss.

Fifth—Fight the boll weevil with determination. By (a) clearing all rubbish and brush about the farm. Use fire freely on hedges and ditches about the farm but do not burn off stubble, stalks, etc., from your fields. Plow this under and let it rot and add plant food to your soil. By (b) keeping a close watchout for the weevil which may be expected to appear as early as the cotton begins to grow. The weevil will be found in the buds of the cotton plants and may be seen very plainly for three to five yards by one who will look carefully and who cares for his welfare and that of his family. It will pay handsomely to destroy these old weevil either by picking them off or by poisoning in the bud of the cotton with calcium arsenate because they are to be the ancestors of all the thousands and millions that may later destroy your crop. If you killed all these as they came from hibernation you would have no young weevil to bother your crop for there are no young ones in the spring and cannot be until your crop has squares large enough to accommodate the weevil's egg or in which she can make her nest for such length of time thereafter as is required for the development through the several stages of the adult which is in the early summer about twenty-one days. This means there can be no weevil to attack your cotton except those that have successfully hibernated or passed the winter about your farm until fully one month after your cotton has begun to square; because the cotton square must be about ten days old before it is large enough to accommodate the egg and immature stages of the weevil. If this idea shall be thoroughly gotten over to the cotton grower it will very greatly reduce the danger of his serious loss from weevil damage.

Let's not fail to get the significance of the fact that every year under all weather conditions that have existed there are in practically every local community farmers who are able to make good yields and profit on the cotton crop. A careful study of these instances will conclusively prove that the principles above suggested are fundamental and that if and when followed success is practically assured. It is a fact, of course, that the cotton crop will require more attention and more care and, of course, the acreage should not be larger than can be handled. Every crop should be pitched so as to insure ample grain and forage for all live stock and ample food for the family. If these supplies are produced we will need much less cotton, because most of our cotton has always gone to pay our bill for these necessities. Also if ample feed and food crops are planned the cotton acreage will incidentally be reduced to a point conforming with the advice of experts regarding cotton acreage under weevil conditions. Plan for a cash income from month to month as nearly as possible throughout the year. A few milk cows and the sale of cream will fit in admirably on most farms. Feed the skim milk to chickens and supplement the cream check with sales of eggs, broilers and fryers. Also feed skim milk to good brood sows and pigs. Avoid debt for current expenses of the farm and family.

Above all, fertilize the cotton crop heavily. 600 to 1,000 pounds per acre will, if used on the right kind of land, practically insure a successful crop of cotton if properly cultivated and if the necessary precaution against the weevil are taken. While poisoning the cotton boll weevil is a success and is entirely practicable, it is not a remedy available to the 60 per cent or more of the annual cotton acreage in the belt which does not promise a yield under normal conditions sufficiently large to prove profitable and, of course, upon which the use of poison cannot be justified even though the remedy be ever so effective.

Jury System Found Inadequate
PRAGUE—Certain juries in Czechoslovakia recently have handed down decisions which are regarded with general dissatisfaction; they have been either unusually severe or unreasonably mild. Thus has the entire system of trial by jury come in for criticism, with a demand for reform. It is set forth in partial explanation that the war and the subsequent revolution have brought about a noticeable uncertainty in the general popular conceptions of right and wrong.

AMUSEMENTS

What the Press Agents Say

Showing Hollywood, Cal., the capital of filmdom, as it really is, not as it is sometimes painted, is one of the features of the James Cruze Paramount picture, "Hollywood," which has been booked by manager McRae for the Princess theater for Monday and Tuesday next. Frank Condon, who wrote the short story from which the picture was adapted, lives in and knows Hollywood intimately. James Cruze, the director, lives in and is familiar with every phase of the community and studio life. The only strangers are some of the unknown players, who interpret the roles of the folks from Centerville, Ind., and who are quite like the characters they depict.

Joel Whitaker is ordered west for his health. His granddaughter Angela, comes with him to seek a place in the films, having been told and herself being quite certain, that she will be a howling success and a star. Later on, all the family come to California and all get into the films except Angela who never gets a chance. They meet all the noted screen folk—stars and directors, and their adventures are both humorous and pathetic with a touch of thrill-throw in.

One of the features—perhaps the greatest—is seeing all the famous screen folk in one film. Another is the opportunity of seeing the famous places in and about the western film capital. Unquestionably, this is the most novel picture that has ever reached the screen.

A cast of players practically unknown to the screen, but every one a type, every one talented. James Cruze's new Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Princess theater for two days beginning next Monday. True, there are many others in the picture—all the prominent stars, directors, and officials of the Paramount organizations, but they appear only in certain scenes. When Angela from rope to screen patrons, makes his de-

Harris Gordon, another new face, plays Dr. Luke Morrison, which is something of a heavy role. Bess Flowers, altogether unknown to the screen is Hortense Towers in the film. Horace Pringle, another important character is portrayed by King Zany, new to the screen.

"Hollywood" which is a remarkable picture in many ways is calculated to appeal to every lover of motion pictures everywhere. It is significant of the importance of the picture that it was made by James Cruze creator of "The Old Homestead" and "The Covered Wagon."

UNPRODUCTIVE HUSBANDS

HAILED TO DIVORCE COURT

BERLIN—A rush to the divorce courts has been produced by the regulation that women teachers, married to men who hold government positions are to be dismissed to make way for women who have no husband to support them.

Feminists are up in arms but the unemployment situation is so serious that radical measures apparently have public support, and divorce seems to be the only means by which married women teachers can be assured of continuation in service. Private schools also are following the policy of dismissing married women whose husbands earn salaries.
